CLIMAX IS NEAR IN LITTLE TRIAL; QUESTION SISTER

State Expected to Rest Late Wednesday or Early Thursday; Hairston to be Cross-Examined After Sarah Kidney's Testimony is Taken; Accused Negro to be Own Witness

With the testimony of Sarah Kidney, invalid sister of John Kidney, slain last Dec. 10, as the climax, the state was nearing the conclusion of its testimony against Arthur Little, 39, the sixth to be tried for the murder. Miss Kidney was brought into the crowded court room in her wheel chair at 1:40 p. m. Wednesday.

Following her testimony the defense was expected to cross-examine John Hairston who testified for the state during the morning session. Miss Kidney followed O. B. Walker, Franklin-co deputy, to the stand.

It is expected that Arthur Little, the accused man, will be the sole defense witness. He will take the stand as soon as the state rests.

John Hairston, 27, colored, tried on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the crime and whose case is now in the hands of Judge Adkins, testified as a witness for the state Wednesday morning against Little and named him as one of the planners and participants in the affair.

TELLS OF CRIME

Hairston testified he had known Little for about two years previous to Dec. 10, 1931, and that Little attended both of the meetings held a short time before the crime was committed. The witness said no plans were made at the first meeting as Loudermilk failed to appear but the arrangements for the burglary were completed at the second session.

Hairston said Little rode in the rumble seat of Loudermilk's car from Hanford Village to the Kidney home on the morning of the crime and that Little was standing closest to Brown when Mr. Kidney emerged from the home and was struck over the head with the club by Brown. He also testified Brown and Little both rushed into the house after Mr. Kidney had been struck and he could hear Miss Kidney's crys.

Hairston stated he did not enter the home but remained near the small blacksmith shop in the front yard. The club was thrown away by Brown when the men returned to the car, Hairston said, but Brown kept the shotgun, and took it to Hanford. Hairston stated he obtained the pistol, stolen from the Kidney home, from Little. After the men had returned to Columbus Little received his share of the money, Hairston testified. Hairston was questioned by Max C. Seyfert, assistant to the county prosecutor.

OTHER WITNESSES

Other witnesses called Wednesday morning were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Yinger and their daughter, Gladys, of Monroe-twp, and Charles Goins, colored, former deputy marshal of Hanford Village.

The shotgun and pistol stolen from the Kidney home when the burglary and murder took place, were identified by Mr. Yinger as the property of the late farmer-blacksmith. Mr. Yinger also related how the aged brother cared for his invalid sister. The witness testified he stayed at the Kidney home at one time to guard the aged brother and sister at night.

Mrs. Yinger and her daughter told of seeing Walker Brown walk past their home in October. 1931, and both fixed the time by referring to the Lancaster fair. They testified Brown was walking in the direction of the Kidney residence. The mother and daughter also described the injuries suffered by Miss Kidney who at the present time is living at the Yinger home.

The shotgun was also identified by Charles Goins as one he found in Hanford Village. The pistol was identified by Goins as one he located in a dump shanty when John Hairston was arrested. Upon testimony of Mr. Goins the state introduced as evidence fishing line the deputy marshal found in the home in which Walker Brown roomed at Hanford. None of the witnesses were cross examined.

Ten witnesses were called by the state during the two and a half hour session Tuesday afternoon. They were: Mrs. Charles Grice, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. McDaniels and Austin Davis, all of Monroe-twp: Sheriff Charles Radcliff and his deputies Bryan Custer, Robert Armstrong and Miller Fissell: Dr. Robert Trimble of Mt. Sterling, and Kenneth Doty, Grove City funeral director. Few of the witnesses were cross examined.

REITERATE STORIES

For the sixth time in court Mrs. Grice and Mr. and Mrs. McDaniels described the torn up condition of the little farm home when they entered it together on the afternoon of Dec. 10. Mrs. Grice told of her discovery of the tragedy when she stopped at the Kidney home following a visit with relatives in the neighborhood. On her first visit to the home Mrs. Grice testified she only opened the door, saw the body of Mr. Kidney lying in a pool of blood on the floor, and left to call aid.

On her return to the home, Mrs Grice said she met the McDaniels and they all entered the home together.

The three said Mr Kidney's head had been crushed, his wrists bound with rope and his body was lying in a pool of blood. Mrs Grice and Mrs. McDaniels testified Sarah Kidney suffered head injuries her arm was broken in two places and her thumbs were bound with fishing line. Miss Kidney, an invalid for six years, was found on the floor back of a couch the women testified. A blanket had been wrapped around Miss Kidney's head.

The three witnesses said they were present when Mr. Kidney

OHIO SALARY CUTS SOUGHT

Two Representatives Seek Slashes From Governor to Lowest Official.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—Governor George White agreed this afternoon to consider a movement launched in the House of Representatives to slash salaries of all state and county officials.

"Go ahead and draw up a bill and if it looks peaceable I'll ask the legislature to come back later to consider it," the Governor told Representative Olney Gillogly, Republican of Muskingum-co and J. Freer Bittinger, Democrat of Ashland-co.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30—Sensational proposals to cut salaries of nearly all state and county officials, from governor down to dog warden, probably will be rushed before the special session of the state legislature today or tomorrow.

Aimed principally at the judiciary, including the state supreme court, the movement was pushed today by members of the house of representatives who agreed at the outset to reduce their own salaries $150 annually.

SEEK NEW BILL

Representatives Olney R. Gillogly (D) of Muskingum-co and L. R. Bostwick (R) of Madison-co, the sponsors, have asked Governor George White to send in a new bill

Faces Noose

Facing the death penalty if convicted, Joseph Young, alias "Blackie," is shown as he nonchalantly puffed a cigarette in the Honolulu city jail after he was indicted in the newest criminal attack case to arouse the island. Young will be the first to be tried under the new territorial law which makes the crime for which he is indicted a capital offence.

Three To Die As Scheduled Unless Gov. White or Clemency Board Acts

Walker Brown, Henry Loudermilk and Lacey Adams will die in the electric chair according to schedule unless the board of clemency or Governor George White intervenes. The three have been convicted in the murder of John Kidney last Dec. 10.

Dates for filing appeals for Brown and Loudermilk have passed and the district court of appeals has upheld Adam's conviction.

Brown and Loudermilk are sentenced to die June 3 and Adams a week later.

DEADLINE PASSES

The deadline for filing an appeal for Loudermilk passed last Friday and that for Brown a week before that.

Brown, giant negro, who has asserted he is innocent even in the face of his accusers, others in the crime who have confessed, was convicted of striking the blows with a heavy pickax handle which caused the death of John Kidney. Loudermilk, a white man, was convicted of plotting the crime after learning of hidden money from a man in Cincinnati. Adams was found guilty of helping plot the crime and of having a part in its commission. It was at his home that meetings were held.

All three are now inmates of 'death row' in Ohio penitentiary.

ONE GRANTED MERCY

Franklin Smith, colored, who was granted mercy by a jury because he did not accompany the men to the home the night of the robbery and murder is in the penitentiary for life and John Hairston, colored, who has been a state's witness is awaiting the judgment of Judge Joseph W. Adkins to whom his fate was submitted after trial last week.

County Schools' Fund Is Reduced

The cost of operating Pickaway-co's schools for 1932 will be decreased approximately $50,000 according to a statement issued Wednesday by D. L. Buchanan, county superintendent of schools.

Last year the county auditor distributed approximately $141,000 out of the 2.65 mill levy of the valuation of the county school district and this year only $99.779.10 is being distributed. This means over a $42,000 shortage in this fund. The decrease is apparent because the tax valuation has decreased from approximately $55,000,000 to $37,672,455.

FUND NOT AVAILABLE

The various boards of education in the county last year received $36,356.12 on the aggregate days of attendance of the pupils of the county, and this year there will be no money available to distribute on the aggregate days of attendance because Section 7600 of the General Code of Ohio states that 37 1-2 per centum of all teachers salaries which are at least $800 and not more than $2400 shall be paid out of the 2.65 mills distribution of taxes for schools.

RETAIN TERMS

The terms of none of the schools in the county will be cut, according to Supt. Buchanan as the state department of education which has control of the state aid fund requires all chartered first grade high school to have eight and one-half months of school.

To schools not able to finance the same, the state will furnish the money for the operation of the last two weeks.

Pickaway-co has been allotted $934 from the state aid fund for Scioto, Muhlenberg and Deercreek-twps. This money will be distributed when needed. All of Pickaway-co's schools will have eight and one-half months of school with the exception of Wayne-twp. This school opened late and will have but eight months.

ALL FIRST CLASS

With the presentation last week of a permanent first grade high school to the Monroe-twp school board all of Pickaway-co's high schools are now in the first class, according to Mr. Buchanan.

SPEED JUSTICE JUDGE PLEADS

Carrington T. Marshall Says Speed Is One Means of Curbing Lawlessness.

COLUMBUS, O., March 30 —Declaring that Democracy is being subjected to a supreme test, Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme court, today issued an appeal for all common pleas judges in Ohio to "speed up criminal justice" as a means of curbing lawlessness.

"There is much talk of new laws and several penalties for kidnaping," the chief justice said. "There is no need of new laws. The prime need is a rigorous enforcement of the laws we have."

Commenting upon the recent Lindbergh baby kidnaping, Chief Justice Marshall declared that the only difference between this crime and other kidnapings "lies in the fact that this latest commission of the greatest of all crimes touches America's first citizen and has torn the heart strings of all our people."

"Another difference," he said, "has been in its results. Something was needed to stir the people into action."

Chief Justice Marshall commended Judge Lynn Griffith for the swift punishment meted out to the kidnapers of James De Jute, Niles schoolboy, recently.

"By swifter justice only may the courts be held blameless in this period of lawlessness," he said.

SCHOOL IS ROBBED

The Saltcreek-twp school was entered Tuesday night by thieves who broke a window to gain entrance.

'Master' keys were used after the thieves were inside the building and a .32 caliber H. & R. revolver the property of J. A. B. Wagner, superintendent, and a quantity of minor articles were stolen. The revolver is the same which three negroes, escaped from the Boys' industrial school at Lancaster stole several weeks ago, but which was recovered when the three were captured in the furnace room.

Three screw drivers, a traveling bag two baseballs, a hacksaw, a pair of snippers, a handsaw, a pair of wire cutters and a steel compass were reported missing.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell investigated the robbery

NEW TAX LEVY IS PLANNED BY HOUSE SOLONS

Additional 45 Millions Added by Ways and Means Committee Today

NEW ITEMS TAXED

Final Action on Measure Expected Friday

WASHINGTON, March 30—New tax levies designed to raise an additional $45,000,000 were approved by the House ways and means committee today as it proceeded methodically toward a balanced federal budget.

The new levies submitted by the committee to the House will run the total new taxes carried in the pending bill to $1,055,000,000.

INCLUDES FOLLOWING

The additional $45,000.000 voted today includes:

Corporation income tax rates, raised another one half per cent to thirteen and one half to net $5,000,000.

Eight per cent tax on oil line business to net $15,000,000;

Five per cent tax on airplanes net $2,000,000;

Readjustment and increase in the gift tax to make the maximum rate 33 and one third per cent in conformity with the House action making the maximum inheritance tax rate 45 per cent to net $5,000,000;

Readjustment of the consolidated returns provision of the corporation income tax so as to impose one and one half per cent on consolidated returns to net $18,000,000.

With these new levies Speaker Garner predicted today that the House may finally pass the new bill by Friday night.

Opposition was expected to the committee's proposal to raise letter postage rates from two to three cents. Republican members of the ways and means committee were considering an alternative plan for a 25 per cent increase in all postal rates.

Efforts also may be made to lower the amusement tax. As revised by the ways and means committee, this tax would be one cent for each ten cents on admissions over 45 cents.

REPUBLICANS CALLED

Republican Leader Snell of New York met with Republican members of the ways and means committee to consider the party's attitude in the final phases of the bill.

While determined to obtain passage of a measure balancing the budget the Republicans did not agree with all of the substitute proposals of the ways and means committee.

Solons Are Surprised by Report of Conditions Throughout State

APPROVAL VOICED

White Asserts Relief Will Be Assured

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—Ohio's legislative wheels were grinding full force today to enact emergency relief measures into law.

By Thursday at the latest, legislative leaders believe Governor George White's program can be put through the lawmaking mill and the legislature can adjourn sine die.

Speeded up by reports of grave difficulties forced by some cities, the majority of the legislature, although nursing minor objections to many sections of the governor's plan, indicated they will submit to the administration "steam roller" and enact the bills into statutes at once.

PLUNGE INTO BILLS

Members of the senate and house taxation committees, surprised by the description of condition given them last night at a public hearing, plunged into the governor's bills today hoping to be able to report them out for passage this afternoon or tonight.

General approval of the administration plan was expressed by legislative leaders following the delivery of the governor's message, there being only few threats of opposition.

Senator Earl R. Lewis (R) of St. Clairsville, majority leader of the senate, declared that "in all probability the governor's program, substantially as given, will be enacted." He said he had made a hasty canvass of legislative sentiment.

Other Republican leaders, including Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, chairman of the special taxation committee, and Representative Lester J. Abels of Cleveland, majority leader of the house, agreed with Lewis, Taft adding that "it was a very excellent message."

Even those leading the opposition to certain parts of the administration program did not hope to forestall a vote of approval.

NO BOLT THREAT

Four senate Democrats, including leader, David H. DeArmond of Hamilton, objected to the White five-point plan when the question was discussed in caucus late yesterday, but there was no threat of a bolt.

Most determined of the opponents was Daniel J. Gunsett of Van Wert, who protested against the entire plan, holding that there is no necessity for levying additional taxes at this time.

Declaring he cannot conscientiously vote for the governor's program for that reason, Gunsett also threatened to take the floor and state his objections to the assembly.

Gunsett objected to the plan to levy a one per cent increase in the tax on public utilities and declares the governor's proposal to allow school boards to furnish relief will be "glaringly misused."

DeArmond said he will not oppose the general plan although he cannot vote for all of it. The other senate objectors were David P. Lorbach of Cincinnati and William H. Herner of Monroeville.

"WIELDING STICK"

The governor, it was learned from one source is "wielding the big stick" over party members to rush the bill through.

One Democrat who had minor objections to the governor's plan said he was called into the governor's private office and advised that "this is going through whether you vote for it or not."

Apparently the most serious thing that can be done by the few opponents is to force the amendment of a few sections of the bills.

Senators Frank E. Whittemore and V. D. Emmons, Akron Republicans who are sponsoring a movement to obtain the transfer of 75 per cent of the state highway department's gasoline tax to relief treasuries, have not been able to find much support, they admitted.

Inconsistency was charged

'BONUS' FIGHT NOW EXPECTED

Hoover, Conservative Members of Congress Oppose Full Payment to Vets

WASHINGTON, March 30.—A bitter fight over full payment of the soldiers' "bonus" appeared inevitable today, with the administration and the more conservative members of Congress opposed to further drains on the treasury.

Rep. Patman (D) of Texas, and Rep. Rankin (D) of Mississippi, leading advocates of full payment in the House, will press their fight before the ways and means committee as soon as the tax bill has been disposed of. The hearings on the numerous bills providing for full payment, may begin next week.

Patman, answering President Hoover's warning against enactment of bonus legislation at this session, declared 90 per cent of the American Legion membership, representing less than one fourth of the Word War veterans, favored payment in full. He asserted that at least 90 per cent of all veterans demanded payment, and two organizations, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled Veterans, were actively working for legislation.

Youngsters Limber Up For Marble Tourney

Eliminations To Be Started Soon

Youthful gladiators of the marble arena are knuckling down on numerous playgrounds and wherever a good bare spot can be found, in daily practice sessions, determined to improve their marksmanship with taws and aggies for the important jousts in the Herald first Marble tournament.

LIMBERING UP

Grimy knuckles are being scraped in the dirt and favorite shots are being rehearsed with care as a mighty arm of young stalwarts start limbering up thumbs in anticipation of the sport and glory which this event afords.

The old-fashioned game of ringer, the same that is played in many lands, is the official game of the marble tournament.

The lure of this game, as its many challenging features are revealed with each succeeding play, has captured the interest of boys and girls eligible to compete and has made it the smartest juvenile game of the season.

And through mastery of this game some boy or girl right here in Circleville is going to win the city championship which will entitle him or her to make the glorious trip to Ocean City, N. J. next June, as a guest of The Herald and H. Martin, maker of Mibs, who are sponsering the tournament. Here they will compete with other champions from all parts of the United States for the marble championship of the nation.

RULES ARE EASY

The complete rules for tournament play have been printed in pamphlet form and are being distributed at the different schools so that each participant can have complete knowledge of the game. If you have not received these rules ask your school teacher for them.

FIVE DISTRICTS

The city is divided into five districts and participants must play in their respective districts. There will be one district for the High-st school, and play will be supervised by H. Martin. The Franklin-st school district will be supervised by John Heiskell, Walnut-st school district will be supervised by T. O. Gilliland, Corwin-st school district, supervised by Fred Watts and Evert's school district will be supervised by, P. S. Heberholz.

Each district will have it's tournament and finals to find out the champion player in each district. After these tournaments the five district champions will play in the city finals and the winner of this will be the one to make the trip to Ocean City.

START NOW

Within a short time the first official play in the districts will be held so it behooves every boy and girl to start getting in trim for these important matches. Regulation size mibs must be used in all play and these are available from Mr. Martin at a small cost. Any other information concerning play can be gotten from the supervisor in your district.

Elsewhere in this issue is found the entry blank which is to be filled out and given to the teacher at your school.

A number of interesting games were played and the meeting adjourned.

Brooklyn Dodgers To Be Greeted

NEW YORK, March 30.—The Brooklyn Dodgers are certain of playing before a capacity crowd when they open their home season at Ebbets Field April 12 against the Boston Braves.

The home town folks are so anxious to get a peep at their revised team that the demand for opening day reservations is the greatest in the history of the club, according to Dave Driscoll, business manager.

Many new faces wil be seen in the lineup and some of the familiar ones will be missing. For one, old Wilbert Robinson has been replaced by Max Carey. Then, the colorful Babe Herman will not be present and Ernest Lombardi and Wally Gilbert have departed to the hinterlands.

Hack Wilson, late of the Chicago Cubs, will be seen cavorting in the outfield and trying to smack homers over the wall for the edification of the rabid Brooklyn fans. Tony Cuccinello, Clyde Sukeforth and Joe Stripp, former members of the Cincinnati Reds also are new members and there will be the usual quota of rookies on hand.

Tickets for the first game will go on sale Friday morning.

Battalino Asked To Take Rest

NEW YORK, March 30.—Nothing that the New York state athletic commission has done for many moons is quite so commendable as to suggest to Battalino that he take a vacation of at least 60 days to recover from the assault visited upon him by Billy Petrolle.

It was put to him in the form of a request, and the gesture was one intended for his best interests. So it shall be. But if Battalino tries to get a tangle anyone within the rings of the Empire state before June 1st it is a certainty that the application will be thumbed down.

The commission, of late, has become alive to the fact that many boys, taking savage beatings one week, would be back in there again before nature had its chance to heal the hurts. It has seen its outer offices clogged with oldish youngsters who fought too often without taking a rest and it is determined that for the best interests of the future of the boys who perform in New York that the battered losers must take an enforced rest.

"Babe Ruth Accepts salary cut." That stabilizes the country's third largest industry for the summer.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills and the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

DEMONSTRATION TO BE HELD FRIDAY

A multiple horse hitch demonstration will be held Friday, April 1st at 1:30 p. m. on the Lawrence L. Moore Farm, one mile south of state route 31 and 2 1-2 miles southeast of Canal Winchester.

There has been more interest in the use of horses as a source of power on the farm this year than has been evident for a number of years past. To get the greatest efficiency from horse power, these horses must be used in larger units per man. Modern machinery investments, labor costs and crop returns warrant taking advantage of the most efficient hitches which may be tried in reducing the farm power bill.

R. D. Barden, Agriculture engineering specialist and L. P. McCann, livestock specialist of the Ohio State University will demonstrate the proper method of adjusting plows and hitches in order to secure the most efficient use of horse power. The demonstration will include four horse, five and six horse hitches. Pickaway-co farmers have been invited to join Franklin and Fairfield-co farmers in attending this demonstration.

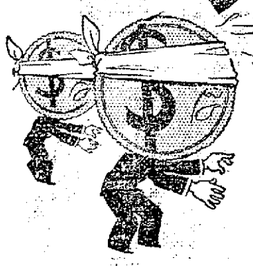
BUY DOLLARS!



Don't Keep Your Dollars Where They Can't See Daylight . . .

THE dollar down deep in the sock; imprisoned in the boodle bag or locked up in the strong box is surely blinded to today's bargain opportunities. Get them out; get them working; give them the chance to see the light of today's bargain opportunities.

GIVE them the freedom to work economy marvels . . . they'll find their chances at every hand for the American dollar has good sense . . . the American dollar has even been bred to practice thrift . . . active, energetic thrift . . . idle hoarding of the dollar made this the world's richest and most progressive nation.

AT today's prices . . . the lowest in 15 years that dollar can work for you as it never has before . . . in, clothing, furniture food, furs, almost all things it can deliver from 40% to double what it purchased in years when you spent it freely. Now is the time to store commodities, not dollars.

THE purchasing power of the dollar is today at its fullest . . . hold on to it and it will shrivel up as surely as today's bargains will fade and disappear with the return of higher prices. That return is very near at hand . . . so near that the procrastinator is sure to be caught napping.

Murder Trial

died. Mr. Kidney died after Dr. Trimble and several county officers had arrived. The rope cut from the wrists of Mr. Kidney and fishing line removed from Miss Kidney's thumbs, were introduced as exhibits by the state upon the testimony of Mrs. McDaniels.

SAW WALKER BROWN

Mrs. Grice also related of seeing Walker Brown, convicted wielder of the pick-ax handle, pass her home in an auto with two other men on Oct. 17, 1931.

Sheriff Radcliff and his deputies, Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell, also described the condition of the home when they arrived. All stated it had been completely ransacked and Mr. Kidney's hat and a pool of blood were discovered in the front yard. Sheriff Radcliff testified he had been unable to trace Little after he had left Hanford Village for Marion, O., on Dec. 11, the day after the burglary and murder. Little was arrested in Mt. Gilead, N. C., about a month ago.

More than one pair of bloody hands were traced at various places in the Kidney home, according to the testimony of Miller Fissell. The deputy said he was unable to obtain clear prints because the fingers were wet and bloody and caused a smeared print but he was able to trace more than one pair of bloody hands.

John Kidney died between the time he was raised from the floor by Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer and C. R. McDaniels and placed on a bed, according to Dr. Trimble. The physician said Mr. Kidney's death was caused by the skull injury.

The bloody clothing taken from Mr. Kidney's body was placed in evidence after it had been identified by Mr. Doty.

IDENTIFIES CLUB

Austin Davis, laborer of Monroe-twp, and Deputy Sheriff Robert Armstrong testified as to the discovery of the pick-ax handle. Mr. Davis said he found it near the bank of a small stream about a mile west of the Kidney home and it was brought to Circleville by the deputy sheriff.

In his opening statement to the jurors County Prosecutor E. L. Crist named Little as one of the co-conspirators and participators in the crime, which was laid upon the information furnished by Loudermilk that a huge sum of money was concealed in the farm home, and resulted in the murder of Mr. Kidney.

It is charged that Little went to the Kidney home with Walker Brown, Henry Loudermilk, John Hairston and Lacey Adams in an auto driven by Loudermilk. Little, the state charges, went to the Kidney home with the three other colored men while Loudermilk stayed in his car about a mile west of the home in a ravine. Walker Brown has been convicted as the man who struck Mr. Kidney over the head with the club when he emerged from the home on the early morning of Dec. 10 and the mistreatment of Miss Kidney and burglary of the home followed. Frank Smith, former proprietor of Due Drop Inn, restaurant in Hanford Village, has been sentenced to life imprisonment as a co-conspirator in the crime. Brown, Loudermilk and Adams are now in death row at the Ohio penitentiary. The case of Hairston is in the hands of Judge Adkins and no decision has been given. Hairston waived a jury trial.

The state charged the men obtained $450, a shotgun and pistol from the Kidney home.

STATEMENT SHORT

The opening statement of H. B. Weaver, defense counsel, follows: "To this indictment the defendant has entered a plea of not guilty. It is incumbent upon the state to prove all the elements of this crime. The facts as introduced by the defense will be the facts and circumstances connecting him with the commission of this crime and that defense will appear after the state completes its evidence."

WHITE'S RELIEF

One by Sen. James E. Finefrock (R) of Stark county authorizing local subdivisions to lease land for garden purposes and to donate seeds to the unemployed for garden purposes:

One by Sen. Frank E. Whittemore (R) of Akron, to authorize cities having municipally-owned utilities and surpluses in these funds to transfer the surpluses to the general fund for relief purposes;

One by Sen. V. D. Emmons (R) of Akron, to authorize diversion of 75 per cent of the state's share of the gasoline tax to local taxing districts for relief purposes;

And a resolution by Sen. Earl R. Lewis (R) of St. Clairsville, providing for a investigation by the state public utilities commission into intrastate freight rates on coal.

Governor White in understood to have no objections to the Finefrock and Whittemore bills.

"E" Most-Used Letter

According to printers' experience the letter "E" is used most frequently. Taking "E" as a base at 1,000 times, the other letters follow in this order: T, 770; A, 728; I, 704; S, 680; O, 672; N, 670; H, 540; R, 528; D, 392; L, 360; U, 298; C, 280; M, 272; F, 236; W, 190; Y, 184; P, 168; G, 168; V, 158; B, 120; K, 88; J, 55; Q, 50; X, 46, and Z, 22.

LEGISLATURE

against one part of the plan during the hearing last night by Senator Taft who said that there will be wide variation in the manner of spending the money since some counties will use their share for mothers' pensions while a clause to prevent subdivisions from issuing bonds unless they have a real need for the money.

DANGER POINTED OUT

A danger that the relief funds might later have to be paid from a levy on real estate was brought out by Representative Horace S. Keifer (R) of Springfield, who stated that a repeal of the act by a future legislature, or a drop in utilities revenue, would endanger counties.

Headed by Mayor Ray T. Miller and Council President John T. Marshall, a delegation from Cleveland registered support of the governor's program at the hearing.

Charles B. Traux of Bucyrus, former state director of agriculture, also stated his approval. Styling himself "a hard-up farmer," Truax urged cooperation between city and rural representatives.

Mayor Jacob S. Coxey Sr. of Massillon, who for months has been trying to win permission for his city to issue low interest-bearing bonds to serve the purpose of money, carried his appeal to the legislature at the hearing. He also cautioned legislators against trying to provide a remedy "until you know the cause of present conditions."

OHIO SALARY

covering their proposals, but have indicated they will draw up one of their own if he refuses.

They hope to rush the measure through at once so their proposed slashes would take effect at the beginning of the terms of those chosen at the November election.

In the case of judges, the suggested salary reductions would mount beyond 25%. Gillogly and Bostwick also urge the abolition of many common pleas judgeships in small counties.

The movement is actively opposed by Representative J. Freer Bittinger (D) of Ashland, minority leader in the house, who refused to sign a petition asking the governor to propose such cuts.

Bittinger also urged colleagues not to sign the petition, protesting that it will "clutter up" the governors program, but many did not heed his counsel. The petition was then circulated among members of the senate.

CITES CONDITION'S

Present financial difficulties of many cities and counties, Gillogly and Bostwick believe, were caused by over-spending on salaries.

George W. McRitchie (D) of Port Clinton and Dan Kane (D) of Dayton are among their supporters. The plan does not provide a definite percentage cut in its tentative form.

Circulation of the petition revealed that Governor White also has been urged to take steps to cut salaries by Horace S. Keifer (R) of Springfield and William W. Weir (R) of Warren.

Their suggestions, rejected by the governor when he drew up his personal relief program, are not connected with the Gillogly-Bostwick movement.

Governor White has already told Gillogly and Bostwick that "the bars are down" and that he will not try to obstruct introduction of any measure, it was learned.

Million Motors Will Trek to Pacific Coast

New York.—At least one million automobiles from east of the Rocky mountains will be driven to the Pacific coast in 1932, according to an estimate based upon a nation-wide survey. The Olympic games at Los Angeles will be one of the chief attractions.

The estimate was made by Cecil Hawley, head of the tourist and road report departments of the Texas company. During the past 60 days Hawley has visited every state capital in the country, checking future tourist possibilities and road conditions.

The average trip for motorists to the pacific coast and back will consume about 22 days, and the average expenditure will be $23 per day. Thus Hawley computes that during 1932 cross-country motorists are going to spend approximately $500,000,000 in the cities and towns and at roadsides along the main highways to the Pacific coast.

Chinese Lipstick in 1730

Among the Chinese paintings on glass recently shown in a London gallery was that of a Chinese young woman at her toilet in a well-to-do home. Although the date of this picture is about 1730, the miss was using a lipstick with all the skill of a modern flapper.

The outlook is bright for those who look out.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week

Mrs. Betty Luedeke of Dayton writes "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lost fat—money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

CHRYSLER

Harder than ever to follow

—in engineering—in performance—in value

CHRYSLER has done things to modern motoring that will, now or later, affect all motor car engineering.

For Chrysler, with Floating Power engine mountings—and with many other vitally important engineering developments—has inaugurated a sweeping change in the spirit, pace and "feel" of modern motor car performance.

Chrysler has given performance a new glamour—a new sensation. A ride in a Chrysler is unlike a ride in any other motor car. It isn't only the stirring experience of Chrysler pick-up and speed—it's the way it feels. It's the smoothness of it, the silence of it—a sensation beyond words.

One ride in a Chrysler and you'll never feel the same way about the performance of any other car. Changes your notions about ease of steering. Changes your opinions about ease and silence of shifting gears. Changes your ideas about brakes—about spring action—about roadability—about a lot of things.

It's all a matter of basic engineering—a matter of leading the way to new value and new results. Step into a new Chrysler today and learn what has happened in modern motor car achievement.

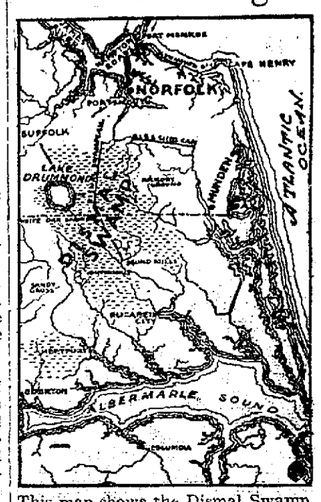
Combed for Eaglet



This map shows the Dismal Swamp district of Virginia. About 30 miles from Norfolk, the Swamp, a honeycomb of waterways reeking with mystery, is being combed by boats and planes in search of the missing Lindbergh baby, owing to the belief that the child is being held somewhere in the desolate area. Historic Kitty Hawk, where the Wright brothers paved the way for Lindy's great exploit, is at lower right.

Anti-Hoarding Drive on Davey Jones

Resuming their salvage work where they left off last autumn, the divers of the Italian company, Sorima, will endeavor to make Father Neptune cough up $5,000,000 in gold from the strongroom of the liner Egypt, which went to the bottom in 1922, near Brest, France, after a collision with a French freighter. It took the salvagers three years to locate the wreck and three more to blast their way to the liner's strongroom. Last year they ripped the top off the cache and, with the treasure in full sight, were compelled to suspend operatious owing to bad weather. However, the divers are sure that this year will see the huge store of gold safely within their grasp. With a new robot-like, metallic suit that enables them to work in comparative ease at a depth of 400 feet and a new grab of their own design, the salvagers consider the treasure as good as theirs. But there is a slight uneasiness as to whether the gold is still in the Egypt. When they abandoned the attempt last year, they were obliged to leave the strongroom uncovered, and there is a possibility that the powerful cross-currents and terrific tides may have scattered the gold over the ocean floor. Back in 1930, ten of the fourteen men comprising the crew of the first Sorima expedition were killed and the salvage ship Artiglio blown sky high. They had finished with the Egypt for the winter and were destroying the wreck of the American munition ship Florence, which was sunk during the war and had constituted a menace to shipping. A premature explosion set off hundreds of tons of shells which blew the Artiglio to smithereens. That was the only fatal accident of the six-year treasure-hunt.

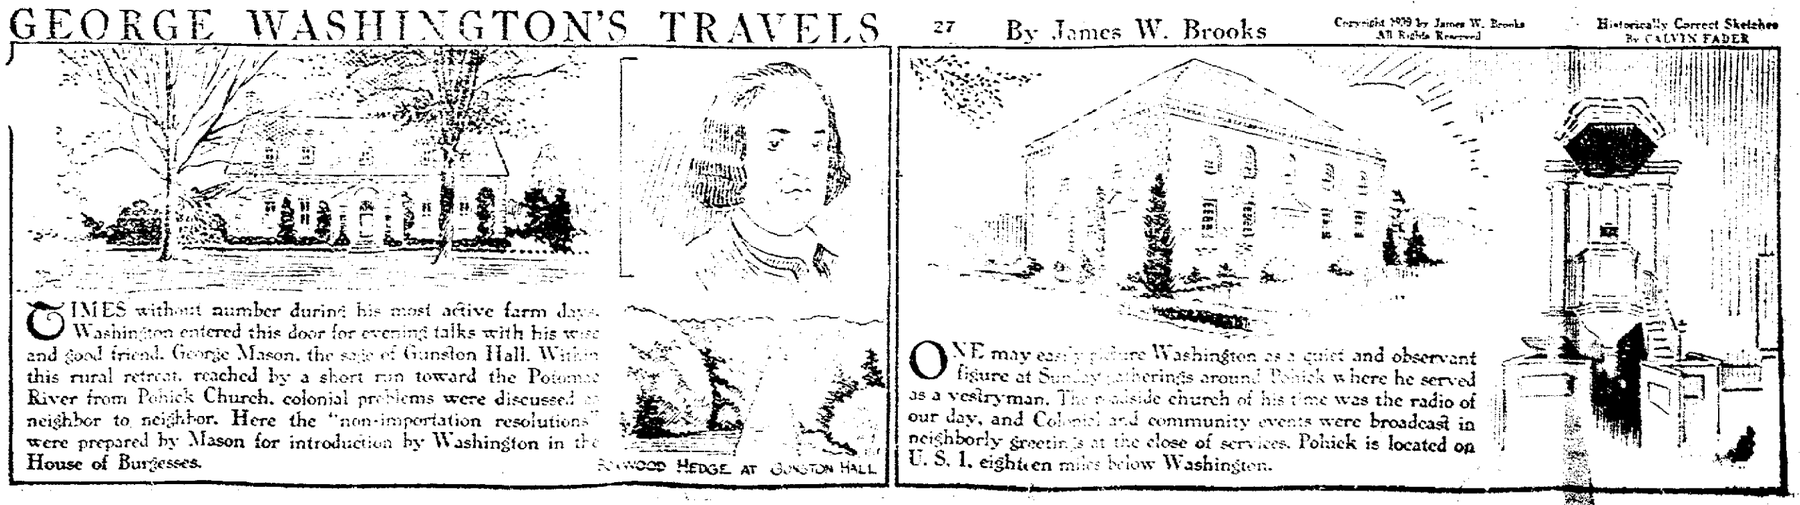
GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS 27 By James W. Brooks



TIMES without number during his most active farm days Washington entered this door for evening talks with his wise and good friend, George Mason, the sage of Gunston Hall. Within this rural retreat, reached by a short run toward the Potomac River from Pohick Church, colonial problems were discussed as neighbor to neighbor. Here the "non-importation resolutions" were prepared by Mason for introduction by Washington in the House of Burgesses.

ONE may easily picture Washington as a quiet and observant figure at Sunday gatherings around Pohick where he served as a vestryman. The roadside church of his time was the radio of our day, and Colonial and community events were broadcast in neighborly greetings at the close of services. Pohick is located on U. S. 1, eighteen miles below Washington.

WALNUT-TWP JUNIOR CLASS TO PEESENT PLAY

The musical comedy " A Dumb Waiter" will be presented Thursday, April 7, at 8 p. m. at the Walnut-twp high school auditorium by the members of the Junior class. Admission will be fifteeen and twenty five cents.

Persons who wish to enjoy an evening of comic, drama and singing, should not fail to see this play. Things become complicated in this two act comedy when Jack Temple decides to become a dumb waiter in order to be near Prudence Bates, whose mother objects to Jack. Disguising as a French waiter and doing the best he can in "spiking ze lingo" he manages, after narrowly averting disaster several times, to keep his identity hidden until things 'break" for him.

Bland, suave Henry J. Bannister, friends of the U. S. Treasurer and habitue of Wall-st, tricks poor Mrs. Bates, hotel proprietress, whose husband has died recently, into selling some of her property to him. Timothy McNoodle with the aid of Jack Temple is just in time to save the situation, McNoolde, a numismatist, is a "queer old duck" and one you'll find difficult to "figure out." Billy Hunter, Jack's friend and "advisor" gets Jack into situations—but he get him out again.

Gloria Martin, close friend of Prudence, is a bright spot in the evenings performance.

Bert Wilkens the Cockney 'wyter' who pronounces his long a's like long i's finds that, though he is really a waiter, he is also a "nobleman by necessity." Mrs. Aurelia Vanderhof, a widow with social ambitions, beguiles many men with charms, and wins them, only to find she is tricked.

All who attend this play will enjoy John Hoover in the roll of Jack Temple; Frances Lanman as Prudence Bates; Howard Cordray as Bert Wilkins; Mary Huffer as Mrs. Aurelia Vanderhof; Thelma Lathhouse as Mrs. Abigail Bates Howard Logsden as Henry J. Bannister; Charles Brown as William Hunter; Louise Runkle as Gloria Martin and Lewis Trapp as Professor Timothy McNoodle.

Jap Colonixation Plans

WHEN Japan in 1904 succeeded to the Russion rights and privileges in Manchuria, thoughtful Chinese feared that the region would come to be largely populated by Japanese and that it would thus be permanently alienated from China. If that was the intention of Japs, they did not succeed. Only 200,000 Japs are now residents in Manchuria and they are chiefly merchants, soldiers and officials. The million Koreans there are Japanese subjects.

Now that the Japs have occupied the territory again they propose intensive colonization of that rich and important area. The plans contemplate the emigration of 2,000,000 members of the trained military reserve from Japan to Manchuria, there to take up their permanent residence.

Colonization of this predominantly Chinese territory with armed Japanese spells future trouble: In time of civil disturbance it has been the custom to arm the reservists with pistols, which they have used much after the manner of those former prohibition agents who shot first and investigated afterwards.

Not even the emigration of 2,000,000 Japs will make the Niponization of Manchuria easy. Since the formation of the Chinese republic millions of Chinese have migrated into Manchuria. Thirty million now live there.

From afar it would seem easier for two million Japs to lose themselves among 30 million Chinese than for 30 million Chinese to lose themselves among two million Japs.

A Great Ambassador

THERE are ambassadors in name only and ambassadors in fact. Ambassador Claudel France's representative in the United States is unquestionably one of the latter, and it is due to that alone that he has been deluged with university degrees and other honors since his official coming to America.

None is more mindful of the special duty of the envoy of a great friendly power, which is the cultivation of amity and mutual understanding and sympathy between his own country and that in which he is a resident.

Ambassador Claudel has helped the American people as a whole to better understand his country. He knows and understands the United States and its people and is constantly interpreting them to his own people that they may respect and admire instead of condemn and reproach.

After all, can an ambassador serve better than in this manner? Radio and cable communication and fast steamships have left little for him to do as a negotiator between governments, and, although these same developments have removed many of the old barriers of ignorance and fearful mystery which once separated nations, they have provided more than required interpretation.

If Ambassador Claudel has promoted good will between France and America he has rendered the greatest service an envoy can render.

Seats on the Exchange

THREE years ago seats on the New York stock exchange brought as much as $625,000 Last week two were sold for $117 000 each, the lowest price since 1925

While the new prices represent a sharp drop from those of the boom period they are yet higher than the record up to 1925 Prior to 1925 the peak was $115 000 established in 1920. In 1919 a seat brought $100.000. The highest before that was $94.000 paid in 1910 Prior to 1900 the record price was $47,500. and before 1895 it was $20,000 Some present owners paid as little as $5000 for their seats.

Values of stock exchange seats have always fluctuated violently between good and bad years They are an accurate barometer of public interest in the market. prices rising and falling with the volume of trading Prevailing low prices reflect the lack of interest in stock market operations.

When normal business conditions return and trading is again conducted on a large scale a seat on the stock exchange may bring as much or more than it did in 1929, although that record is expected to stand unchallenged for many years

Those 1929 prices were high and should have served as a warning of pending deflation but for their time they were no higher than those 1925 and earlier prices which were considered exorbitant at that time.

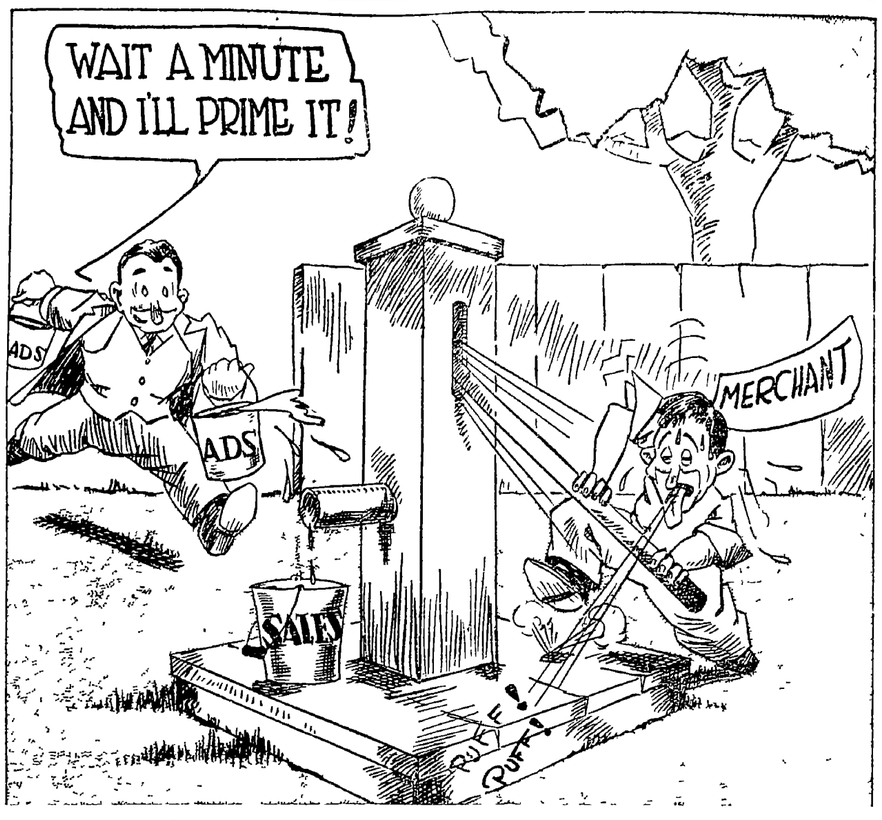
No Use Working Himself to Death



"The GAY BANDIT of the BORDER"

by TOM GILL

COPYRIGHT 1931, BY INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE CO, INC. — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC

SYNOPSIS

For years, Paco Morales ruled the peons in Mexico with an iron hand, confiscating their lands and driving them from their homes, but the crisis has come. "El Coyote," the mysterious bandit, avenges every outrage perpetrated by Morales. The ranchers await their unknown protector's word to revolt. Morales, with the aid of the U. S. Cavalry under Major Blount, has searched for the bandit in vain. Ted Radcliffe, an American whose late father was ruined by Morales, is in love with Adela, the Spaniard's beautiful niece. Jito, Morales' ward, is jealous of Ted. Bob Harkness, Ted's friend, tells him he has plans for settling the score with Morales. While out riding, Ted and Adela lose their way and spend the night in the desert. Adela resents her uncle's suspicions. Later, Bob returns home with Ted and learns that some of his cattle were stolen He doubts that "El Coyote" is responsible. At Mendoza's, a notorious resort, Bob leaves Ted and goes upstairs to visit Ann Reed, an entertainer. Bob is "El Coyote" and Ann his spy She is deeply in love with him. As autumn comes, "El Coyote" makes ready to overthrow Morales. When Ted notices Bob's stolen cattle among Jito's herd, the latter explains he just found them and intended returning them. Major Blount invites Bob and Ted to his headquarters to learn the identity of "El Coyote." Bob is puzzled. Morales and Jito are also present. Antonio Ortega, the informer, one of "El Coyote's" lieutenants, is expected momentarily.

"Who is El Coyote?"

CHAPTER XXXV

"He calls himself Antonio Ortega."

Don Bob moved ever so slightly in his chair "A short, stocky chap with a scar over his eye?" he asked

For the first time Jito spoke. "I gave him that scar," he muttered "It lies above his right eye"

The major nodded. "That's the fellow A villainous sort of ruffian Last week he came here at night, half frightened to death. Told me he had a secret to sell I felt like kicking him, but in this life one works with the tools one finds I tried to get him to tell me then and there, but not he. Said in a week he would be ready to leave the country and that the night he told me I was to pay him the reward and escort him to the fort. Oh, the fellow was in a terrible funk. He must have loved money very much to dare this thing in the face of his fear. He was so rotten scared he jabbered, and perhaps you can't blame him. You all remember what happened to the last man who gave information" The major touched his chest "Two shots through the throat and a handful of gold coins scattered over him to show El Coyote's contempt. I've had to endure this fellow military escort out of the [illegible] By God I'll see him [illegible] If anything did happen now I'd not be able to get another [illegible] mouth to [illegible] the Homestake Mine [illegible] comfortable [illegible] and nine-thirty. And [illegible] El Coyote"

[illegible] men considered [illegible] Pionet himself [illegible] up and down the [illegible] had he been so [illegible] he buttoned a [illegible] After minutes [illegible] tenseness. In the [illegible] glowed a fire of [illegible] too was having difficulty [illegible] calm. Cautiously Ted looked at Jito, but the big fellow stood apart watching the shadows that rose and fell on the tent wall At intervals [illegible] steady [illegible] minutes more

Abruptly out of the [illegible] sound of a shot closely [illegible] another ripped its way into the little group Each man started to his feet. Loudly Blount called an orderly.

"Find out what that damned shooting's about" Perspiration had broken out on his face. "Ordinarily I wouldn't worry—but by God, if anything goes wrong—"

Reaching in a canvas knapsack he buckled on his army automatic Muttering with impatience he walked twice the length of the floor A footfall sounded on the sand outside and a long shadow fell across the tent wall. Quickly the major raised the flap. In the moonlight stood Don Bob, rolling a cigarette He nodded, and scratched a match on the tent pole.

"I just heard two shots major" Bob inhaled the fragrant smoke deeply "Do you suppose it could mean something's wrong with your [illegible]"

Before the major could answer a little [illegible] approached, peered [illegible] Mexican between them

"He's shot [illegible] outside the [illegible]," a corporal announced "We found two shots almost together, then [illegible] cursed in Spanish and [illegible] screaming [illegible] Once [illegible] got [illegible] He's just not sure"

[illegible] looked closely at the man. He held the lamp nearer and a [illegible] rolled in his throat "It's [illegible], by God! Put him [illegible] Get some brandy! He [illegible] had about "Bat [illegible] helpless Roughly he shook [illegible] "Who is El Coyote"

The Mexican's glazing eyes [illegible] and [illegible] terror [illegible] Desperately he [illegible] Morales "Ask [illegible] Quick! No beat of life. It was over.

Hardened Arteries Due To Poisoning of Tissues

Moderation in All Things Is the Most Important Element in Treatment of Arteriosclerosis, and Will Enable Patient to Live in Comfort.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the common ailments is preferred to as hardening of the arteries. The doctors call it arteriosclerosis

This is a chronic condition of the arteries in which the walls of the vessels become less elastic and thicker than normal Although most common in advanced life, especially after the sixtieth year, such changes are by no means unknown in middle age

This trouble is sometimes an inherited defect. It occurs, too, where great mental strain is undergone.

The chief exciting cause of the disease is chronic poisoning of the body tissues This is found in gout diabetes and inflammation of the kidneys Abnormal substances in the blood may injure the blood vessels directly, or, by contracting the smaller vessels raise the blood pressure Acute infections may produce conditions that later develop into arteriosclerosis

In advanced cases of arterial change the affected vessels become hardened tubes As a result, there is an interference with the free circulation of the blood

The symptoms of arteriosclerosis are dependent upon the vessels involved In some cases general failure of health, pallor of the skin and loss of energy are the first symptoms noted

Where the blood pressure is high nervous symptoms are usual There are dizziness sleeplessness mental irritability mental depression or impairment of memory

Advanced cases may be accompanied by disturbance of vision. Sometimes the vessels of the abdomen may be affected causing severe pain not dependent upon the taking of food

The abdominal symptoms may be misleading and often are not recognized as due to the arterial condition Usually they are regarded as indicating some form of indigestion but the fact that the usual treatment for indigestion is useless while remedies to reduce high blood pressure are effective will aid the recognition of the real cause

The outcome of the case is dependent upon the location of the diseased blood vessels and the willingness of the patient to follow the advice of the attending physician Where the blood pressure is very high and the kidneys show signs of failure the utmost care must be exercised

The treatment must be suited to the general health the habits of the patient and his financial circumstances. The most important thing is moderation in every particular There should be no overexertion, no alcoholic beverages and very little, if any tobacco

The diet should be unstimulating largely vegetable and cereal Tea and coffee are not prohibited when taken in moderation but most patients will do better if milk fresh or fermented is substituted for those familiar beverages

A life free from excitement and worry will do much toward ensuring a comfortable and useful existence Drugs are of less value than hygienic measures It is important to avoid constipation

The well regulated life of a health resort often accomplishes wonders even in serious cases Here gentle exercise or massage regulated diet and freedom from stress of home life tranquilize the mind lessen nervous excitement bring blood pressure within normal limits and do much to assist the patient in his struggle toward health

At the Circleville Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

An unshaven and disheveled Ronald Colman without his striped trousers his Oxonian speech or his Chesterfieldian manners is the not inconsiderable promise in "The Unholy Garden" the new Samuel Goldwyn picture which comes to the Cliftona theatre Thursday and Friday.

In this adventure melodrama by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur Colman is seen as Barry Hunt, a gentleman adventurer a rogue who has seen better days and honester ways With a motley crew of murderers thieves and other outcasts he is hiding from the police in a Sahara outpost camp

One of the number a wizened old Frenchman, is believed to have hidden his plunder somewhere upon the premises, and to worm this information from him is the individual and collective effort of the group Spying and intrigue and flying desert rides and murders are essential ingredients of the yarn.

Coleman expressed a great fondness for the story while filming it Largely, he explained because it made him think of the beloved "Beau Geste" His preference is still for sophisticated comedy-for what once was known as "a comedy of manners" An occasional relief is necessary, he believes, in order to break down what in pictures is called a singleness of purpose

Samuel Goldwyn has procured a commendable cast in support of the star for "The Unholy Garden" It includes Fay Wray Estella Taylor, Tully Marshall Warren Hymer, Ullah Haupt, Henry Armetta, Kit Guard Lawrence Grant and Lucille La Verne

AT THE GRAND

It was once said of Victor MacLaglen that he could not appear on the screen without a uniform The same is now said and with more truth of Walter Bryon who plays a leading role in the Fox production, "The Yellow Ticket" featuring Elissa Landi, Lionel Barrymore and Laurence Olivier, and opening Wednesday at the Grand

Bryon wore his first uniform for four years with the English Army, somewhere in France Some Hollywood producer must have been in the actor's company, and after being discharged passed the word around the screen colony of Bryon's fitness for soldier roles, for practically every picture he has played in he has always been in the uniform of an officer

In "The Yellow Ticket" he perhaps wears the most colorful one of his uniformed career, an ornate and profusely decorated affair, resplendent in gold braid and reinforced with trappings to match.

He plays the role of Count Nikolai, a weak and scheming tool of the head of Russia's secret police.

Miss Landi enacts the role of the young girls, prosecuted by the police and Barrymore appears as the cruel monster who oppresses her.

Ronald Colman and Fay Wray in a scene from "The Unholy Garden," at the Cliftona Theatre Thursday and Friday.

Seats on the Exchange

THREE years ago seats on the New York stock exchange brought as much as $625,000. Last week two were sold for $117,000 each, the lowest price since 1925.

While the new prices represent a sharp drop from those of the boom period they are yet higher than the record up to 1925. Prior to 1925 the peak was $115,000, established in 1920. In 1919 a seat brought $100,000. The highest before that was $94,000 paid in 1916. Prior to 1900 the record price was $47,500, and before 1895 it was $20,000. Some present owners paid as little as $5000 for their seats.

Values of stock exchange seats have always fluctuated violently between good and bad years. They are an accurate barometer of public interest in the market, prices rising and falling with the volume of trading. Prevailing low prices reflect the lack of interest in stock market operations.

When normal business conditions return and trading is again conducted on a large scale a seat on the stock exchange may bring as much or more than it did in 1929, although that record is expected to stand unchallenged for many years.

Those 1929 prices were high and should have served as a warning of pending deflation, but for their time they were no higher than those 1925 and earlier prices, which were considered exorbitant at that time.

SYNOPSIS

For years, Paco Morales ruled the peons in Mexico with an iron hand, confiscating their lands and driving them from their homes, but the crisis has come. "El Coyote," the mysterious bandit, avenges every outrage perpetrated by Morales. The ranchers await their unknown protector's word to revolt. Morales, with the aid of the U. S. Cavalry under Major Blount, has searched for the bandit in vain. Ted Radcliffe, an American whose late father was ruined by Morales, is in love with Adela, the Spaniard's beautiful niece. Jito, Morales' ward, is jealous of Ted. Bob Harkness, Ted's friend, tells him he has plans for settling the score with Morales. While out riding, Ted and Adela lose their way and spend the night in the desert. Adela resents her uncle's suspicions. Later, Bob returns home with Ted and learns that some of his cattle were stolen. He doubts that "El Coyote" is responsible. At Mendoza's, a notorious resort, Bob leaves Ted and goes upstairs to visit Ann Reed, an entertainer. Bob is "El Coyote" and Ann his spy. She is deeply in love with him. As autumn comes, "El Coyote" makes ready to overthrow Morales. When Ted notices Bob's stolen cattle among Jito's herd, the latter explains he just found them and intended returning them. Major Blount invites Bob and Ted to his headquarters to learn the identity of "El Coyote." Bob is puzzled. Morales and Jito are also present. Antonio Ortega, the informer, one of "El Coyote's" lieutenants, is expected momentarily.

"Who is El Coyote?"

CHAPTER XXXV

"He calls himself Antonio Ortega."

Don Bob moved ever so slightly in his chair. "A short, stocky chap with a scar over his eye?" he asked.

For the first time Jito spoke. "I gave him that scar," he muttered. "It lies above his right eye."

The major nodded. "That's the fellow. A villainous sort of ruffian. Last week he came here at night, half frightened to death. Told me he had a secret to sell. I felt like kicking him, but in this life one works with the tools one finds. I tried to get him to tell me then and there, but not he. Said in a week he would be ready to leave the country and that the night he told me I was to pay him the reward and escort him to the fort. Oh, the fellow was in a terrible funk. He must have loved money very much to dare this thing in the face of his fear. He was so rotten scared he jabbered, and perhaps you can't blame him. You all remember what happened to the last man who gave information." The major touched his chest. "Two shots through the throat and a handful of gold coins scattered over him to show El Coyote's contempt. I've had to promise this fellow military protection and a safe escort out of the country. By God, I'll see nothing happens to him. If anything did happen, we wouldn't be able to get another man to open his mouth if you offered him the Homestake Mine. So make yourselves comfortable, gentlemen, until nine-thirty. And then for El Coyote."

In silence the four men considered the major's table. Blount himself walked restlessly up and down the tent. Never before had he been so near his enemy. He buttoned and unbuttoned his coat. A few minutes more. Ted felt the tenseness. In the eyes of Morales glowed a fire of undying hate. He too was having difficulty in remaining calm. Cautiously Ted looked at Jito, but the big fellow stood apart watching the shadows that rose and fell on the tent wall. An interminable silence.

At last Don Bob looked at his watch.

"Nothing to be done for twenty minutes. Think I'll go out and take a look about your camp, major. No, don't bother coming. I just want to stretch a bit." And smiling at Ted he passed out of the tent.

Thoughtfully Morales looked after him. "So at last Don Bob's romantic hero comes to the end of a bloody trail. It was bound to be. For how can one put trust in this scum of the border and hope to live? One offers money and nothing happens because men are afraid. One offers more money, and sooner or later comes a man whose greed for gold is greater than his fear of the Coyote's vengeance. So it is with this Antonio. For him rewards and protections are too good. I would learn what he knows and cut his throat."

"Except that I have promised him both reward and protection," the major reminded.

Morale's smile held an amused pity. "As you will. You Americans and your sentimental moralities! They amuse me, if I may say so without offense. You believe in keeping faith even with the faithless. An expensive gesture at times. But protect him, by all means, my major. Qué va, what we want is El Coyote."

In the talk neither Jito nor Ted took part, but stood on either side of the table, looking silently down. Once Jito's glance fell on the young American, and he seemed again to be gauging him as an antagonist not unworthy of one's best skill. Again came to Ted that sense of inevitable conflict—of a coming time when these two would come face to face in a last encounter.

So the long minutes dragged by, and at length even Morales and the major fell silent, gazing with a kind of hypnotic attraction at the watch that lay on the table between them, awaiting the arrival of the unknown man who might clear up the mystery that for years had baffled the borderland.

A soft breeze, hot and dry from the desert, sighed through the tent, ruffling the flap, causing the lamp shadows to dance upon the farther wall. All eyes were now upon the watch, its steady ticking drowned in five minutes more.

Abruptly out of the night the sound of a shot closely followed by another ripped its way into the little group. Each man started to his feet. Loudly Blount called an orderly.

"Find out what that damned shooting's about." Perspiration had broken out on his face. "Ordinarily I wouldn't worry—but, by God, if anything goes wrong—"

Reaching in a canvas knapsack he buckled on his army automatic. Muttering with impatience he walked twice the length of the floor. A footfall sounded on the sand outside and a long shadow fell across the tent wall. Quickly the major raised the flap. In the moonlight stood Don Bob, rolling a cigarette. He nodded, and scratched a match on the tent pole.

"I just heard two shots, major." Bob inhaled the fragrant smoke deeply. "Do you suppose it could mean something's wrong with your information?"

Before the major could answer a little knot of soldiers approached, bearing a Mexican between them.

"He was shot just outside the line, sir," a corporal announced. "We heard two shots almost together, then somebody cursed in Spanish and this bird came running into us screaming. One shot got him. He's just about gone."

Blount looked closely at the man. He held the lamp nearer and a bitter curse rolled in his throat. "It's Antonio, by God! Put him in that chair. Get some brandy." He raised a futile hand aloft. "By God," he said helplessly. Roughly he shook the inert form.

"Who is El Coyote?"

The Mexican's glazing eyes opened and turned in terror toward the light. A rasping cough trembled in his throat. Desperately the major said to Morales: "Ask him in Spanish. Quick. The man is dying."

The Spaniard's face glowed with a dark fury. He glared at the Mexican. "Quien es El Coyote?" he hissed. "Dígame, pronto, quien es?"

Slowly the Mexican's head rolled, his lips opened and his eyes roved about the little group. At last they rested on the face of Don Bob. A little convulsive quiver ran through the wounded man, his jaws dropped, and he slumped limply forward. The major's hand closed on the Mexican's pulse. No beat of life. It was over.

Hardened Arteries Due To Poisoning of Tissues

Moderation in All Things Is the Most Important Element in Treatment of Arteriosclerosis, and Will Enable Patient to Live in Comfort.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONE of the common ailments is preferred to as hardening of the arteries. The doctors call it arteriosclerosis.

This is a chronic condition of the arteries in which the walls of the vessels become less elastic and thicker than normal. Although most common in advanced life, especially after the sixtieth year, such changes are by no means unknown in middle age.

This trouble is sometimes an inherited defect. It occurs, too, where great mental strain is undergone.

The chief exciting cause of the disease is chronic poisoning of the body tissues. This is found in gout, diabetes and inflammation of the kidneys. Abnormal substances in the blood may injure the blood vessels directly, or, by contracting the smaller vessels, raise the blood pressure. Acute infections may produce conditions that later develop into arteriosclerosis.

In advanced cases of arterial change, the affected vessels become hardened tubes. As a result, there is an interference with the free circulation of the blood.

The symptoms of arteriosclerosis are dependent upon the vessels involved. In some cases general failure of health, pallor of the skin and loss of energy are the first symptoms noted.

Where the blood pressure is high, nervous symptoms are usual. There are dizziness, sleeplessness, mental irritability, mental depression or impairment of memory.

Advanced cases may be accompanied by disturbance of vision. Sometimes the vessels of the abdomen may be affected, causing severe pain not dependent upon the taking of food.

The abdominal symptoms may be misleading, and often are not recognized as due to the arterial condition. Usually they are regarded as indicating some form of indigestion, but the fact that the usual treatment for indigestion is useless, while remedies to reduce high blood pressure are effective, will aid the recognition of the real cause.

The outcome of the case is dependent upon the location of the diseased blood vessels and the willingness of the patient to follow the advice of the attending physician. Where the blood pressure is very high and the kidneys show signs of failure, the utmost care must be exercised.

The treatment must be suited to the general health, the habits of the patient and his financial circumstances. The most important thing is moderation in every particular. There should be no overexertion, no alcoholic beverages and very little, if any, tobacco.

The diet should be unstimulating, largely vegetable and cereal. Tea and coffee are not prohibited when taken in moderation, but most patients will do better if milk, fresh or fermented, is substituted for those familiar beverages.

A life free from excitement and worry will do much toward ensuring a comfortable and useful existence. Drugs are of less value than hygienic measures. It is important to avoid constipation.

The well regulated life of a health resort often accomplishes wonders, even in serious cases. Here gentle exercise or massage, regulated diet and freedom from stress of home life tranquilize the mind, lessen nervous excitement, bring blood pressure within normal limits and do much to assist the patient in his struggle toward health.

The Daily Horoscope

Wednesday, March 30, 1932

The early morning is marked with strong energetic tendencies. Around 9 o'clock is very favorable for taking the initiative in new enterprises. Benefical for mechanical work, mixing chemicals and disinfectants, iron and steel construction and carpentry. All who use tools should find this indication productive of gain and benefit.

Manufacturers should find this day in their favor, and the whole trend of industry should be better. People feel more courageous on a day like this and are ready to tackle disagreeable jobs.

Military men are under good indications, likewise those connected with sports and athletics.

A constructive and invigorating trend marks the whole day until 8:29 P. M. Then the indications point to a slowing up, developing a strong serious note. This favors the brave, who may now develop their plans, study out the future and lay down their policies.

Not a good night for those lacking in strength and purpose. Effort should be made to cultivate optimism or there is a libility to give way to anxiety and worry. Avoid negative talk and get out and visit friends. Listen to good music.

Children born this day are careful determined and set in their way. They can be coaxed but not driven. This applies to the male children in particular. The girls born on this day are more emotional than the boys, therefore can be appealed to easier thru their sympathies.

The grown-ups, both the men and women born on this day are inclined to criticize others because or their methodical nature, and are not even satisfied with their own work. All people born from March 27 to April 1st are more or less interested in artistic occupations. They are good overseers and the men do well in the building business.

Famous people of the world born on this day are:

DeWolf Hopper, actor; John Fiske; Don Carlos; Paul Veraine, French poet.

At the Circleville Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

An unshaven and disheveled Ronald Colman, without his striped trousers, his Oxonian speech or his Chesterfieldian manners, is the not inconsiderable promise in "The Unholy Garden," the new Samuel Goldwyn picture which comes to the Cliftona theatre Thursday and Friday.

In this adventure melodrama by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, Colman is seen as Barry Hunt, a gentleman adventurer, a rogue who has seen better days and honester ways. With a motley crew of murderers, thieves and other outcasts he is hiding from the police in a Sahara outpost camp.

One of the number, a wizened old Frenchman, is believed to have hidden his plunder somewhere upon the premises, and to worm this information from him is the individual and collective effort of the group. Spying and intrigue and flying desert rides and murders are essential ingredients of the yarn.

Coleman expressed a great fondness for the story while filming it. Largely, he explained, because it made him think of the beloved "Beau Geste." His preference is still for sophisticated comedy-for what once was known as "a comedy of manners." An occasional relief is necessary, he believes, in order to break down what in pictures is called a singleness of purpose.

Samuel Goldwyn has procured a commendable cast in support of the star for "The Unholy Garden." It includes Fay Wray, Estella Taylor, Tully Marshall, Warren Hymer, Ullrik Haupt, Henry Armetta, Kit Guard, Lawrence Grant and Lucille La Verne.

AT THE GRAND

It was once said of Victor MacLaglen that he could not appear on the screen without a uniform. The same is now said and with more truth of Walter Bryon, who plays a leading role in the Fox production, "The Yellow Ticket," featuring Elissa Landi, Lionel Barrymore and Laurence Oliver, and opening Wednesday at the Grand.

Bryon wore his first uniform for four years with the English Army, somewhere in France. Some Hollywood producer must have been in the actor's company, and after being discharged passed the word around the screen colony of Bryon's fitness for soldier roles, for practically every picture he has played in he has always been in the uniform of an officer.

In "The Yellow Ticket" he perhaps wears the most colorful one of his uniformed career, an ornate and profusely decorated affair, resplendent in gold braid and reinforced with trappings to match.

He plays the role of Count Nikolai, a weak and scheming tool of the head of Russia's secret police.

Miss Landi enacts the role of the young girls, presecuted by the police and Barrymore appears as the cruel monster who oppresses her.
